

Social inequalities and cancer

Cancer is not equally distributed across countries and individuals. Although the magnitude and profile of cancer change over time, along with the socioeconomic development of societies, within each population the most disadvantaged individuals systematically have a higher burden of cancer. Dr Salvatore Vaccarella will introduce the topic, highlighting how the context and health-care inefficiencies determine cancer inequalities.

Dr Salvatore Vaccarella

Scientist
Cancer Surveillance Team (CSU)
IARC/WHO