

Social inequalities in cancer: the potential for prevention

Inequalities in cancer across social groups are in large part preventable. How do these social inequalities in cancer arise? How can they be addressed? We will discuss inequalities across the cancer continuum, and we will focus on barriers to the cancer screening pathway. We will also provide examples of some possible interventions and facilitators to overcome these barriers, so that no one is left behind.

Dr Salvatore Vaccarella

Scientist
Cancer Surveillance Branch (CSU)
IARC/WHO

Chair

Guest Speaker

Dr Isabel Mosquera

Scientist
Early Detection, Prevention and
Infections Branch (EPR)
IARC/WHO